

No One Knows Your Body Better Than You

As a new amputee, your health and well-being are at the center of your journey. Advocating for yourself is the key to getting the care, comfort, resources, and support you deserve.

Speak up about what you need—whether it's better pain management, access to physical therapy, or a prosthetic fit that works with your body as it changes. Adjustability in your socket can be a crucial part of this, allowing you to adapt and stay comfortable through recovery and beyond.

"I wish I had adjustability from the start. My limb changed so much in the first few years, and with insurance restrictions, getting a new socket isn't always an option. Adjustability makes a huge difference. I would 100% recommend it for new amputees."

Ask your practitioner for an adjustable socket, it will make all the difference in the world.
